

Healthy budget, but lab loses bonus

Times Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — A bonus The House of Representatives had authorized for nuclear weapons research won't be coming through to Lawrence Livermore Laboratory after all.

A proposed $24 million for "advanced research" was struck by House-Senate conferees which put the final touches on the 1978 authorization bill for the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration weapons work.

The final version still leaves LLL with about $138 million for weapons research, a healthy $10 million increase over fiscal 1977.

However, the House — largely at the urging of LLL Director Roger Batzel — had added another $24 million to be split among LLL, Sandia Laboratory, (mainly at the Albuquerque New Mexico, branch) and Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory.

Batzel had argued that money was needed for "advanced research," which is research not necessarily associated with a particular weapon system.

That $24 million was struck by the conference as part of a compromise in which the Senate conferees agreed to a final budget figure $20 million more than the full Senate had approved.

The full Senate had made cuts in the Carter Administration proposal on the grounds that certain new warheads weren't yet ready for production.

It rescinded those cuts at conference and, as it turned out, the amount finally budgeted for weapons activity was exactly the amount the Carter Administration had requested: $1.18 billion, including both research on and production of nuclear warheads (not delivery systems; they come under the Pentagon budget).

Included in another section of the same bill, is the authorization for the laser fusion program. In that section, the more generous House got its way, and LLL will receive close to the $45.5 million the House had approved.

That represents a 50 percent increase over last year, one of the biggest hikes any LLL program has received in years.

Not included in any of the figures above are three major construction projects, also approved for first-year expenditures:

— The NOVA Laser Facility — actually an addition to the current SHIVA — is slated for $8 million to start construction. NOVA — expected to cost $200 million by completion will increase SHIVA's output fivefold and is expected to demonstrate for the first time the feasibility of energy gain with lasers.

— The High Explosive/Radiography Facility was slated for $5 million, also to begin construction. The facility will be at Site 300, the non-nuclear test site about 15 miles east of Livermore.

— A new office building had its first-year budget cut from the House's proposed $12.3 million to only $1.3 million on grounds that in fiscal 1978 only architectural and engineering work can be done.

District near top again

Only one weak SR test link

Though the district mean test scores for second, third, sixth and twelfth graders of last year are down slightly from the year previous, San Ramon student performance in the California Assessment Program in 1976-77 once again tested out near the top.

The assessment program tests second and third graders in reading and sixth and twelfth graders in reading, written expression, spelling, and mathematics.

Results analyzed and discussed at a press conference Monday were those from tests administered to 4,344 second, third, sixth and twelfth graders of last year.

For the second consecutive year, San Ramon seniors scored near the top of the comparison bands for reading, written expression and mathematics. Only in spelling, where the percentile rank of the district mean score dropped from 90 (in 1975-76) to 82 (1976-77) was there any significant drop. The 82, however, is well within the comparison score band of 77-92.

The district mean score refers to the per cent of questions answered correctly by all students in the district. For example, on reading tests, second and third graders scored 81.5 and 92.2, respectively. Their respective state percentile ranks were 88 and 90, both at the top of the comparison band.

The state percentile ranking translates the per cent correct scores into a percentile ranking showing what per cent of other schools or districts in the state scored at or below that level.

The comparison band is derived from various socioeconomic background factors, including the per cent of minority pupils enrolled, average class size and daily attendance, assessed valuation, the general purpose tax rate, and expenditures per unit of average daily attendance.

Dr. James Solberg, assistant superintendent for administration and evaluation, asked what could be done to bolster spelling, said "We will undoubtedly develop some competencies now. The law says they must be developed by 1980, but we should have ours developed this year, starting with the sophomore class."

Solberg said the administration annually sits down with principals to determine objectives in all academic areas, including the areas that are tested.

Stark asked to intervene at airport

LIVERMORE — The Airport Advisory Committee wants more action and less words, at least the oral communications, from the FAA on the West Clear Zone. And they feel it is time to involve Congressman Pete Stark in the matter.

The subject came to a head when Public Works director Dan Lee gave an oral report updating progress on the West Clear Zone. He said he had talked to the right-of-way specialist at the FAA regional office in Burlington, Robert Robinson, and was told the most recent delay in completing the confirmation of the appraisal report was a "clerical problem - not enough secretaries to get it typed up."

Lee had reported last month that Robinson said everything would be ready in "a week." He also had been told all would be ready "in a week" several weeks earlier. But Lee said Robinson assured him this time the paperwork would be out very soon.

Little impact in Pleasanton

A boost for drive to elect Livermore mayor

Fremont's overwhelming vote last Tuesday to directly elect the city's mayor was seen as a "good indicator" to Livermore council member Dale Turner, who is heading up an effort to have his city's mayor elected rather than appointed from council ranks. "I'm very happy about the Fremont results. I wasn't looking to Fremont as a barometer that says aye or nay — if it had failed we would have gone ahead — but it encouraged us," said Turner.

The city councils of Livermore and Pleasanton now appoint their respective mayors annually from their own ranks. Thus Livermore mayor Helen Tirsell was elected to serve as a council member, but appointed by her comrades to serve as mayor.

Turner, up for re-election in March, says he and approximately 20 other citizens hope to place an initiative on that ballot allowing voters the choice of directly electing their mayor or remaining with the present system. First the group must publish a legal notice expressing intent to circulate a petition, then gather at least 2,100 signatures of registered voters within 60 days after the notice is published.

This is Turner's second attempt to get the initiative on the March 7 ballot. First he asked other council members to, through council powers, put the issue before voters.

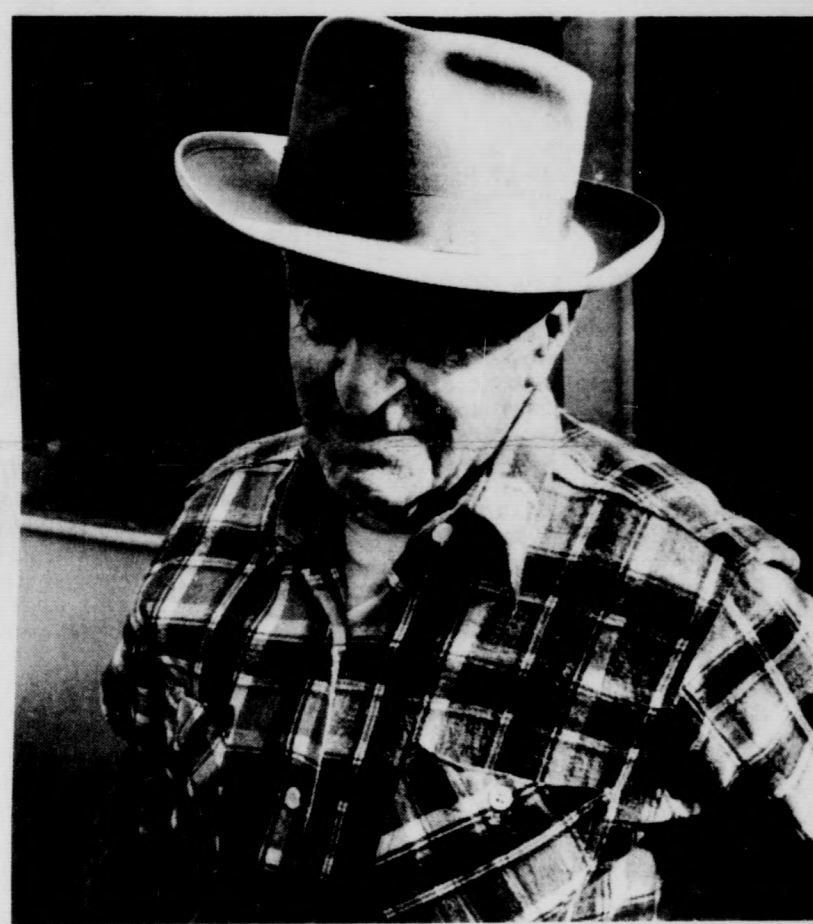

"We haven't had many people expressing concern about it to us," said mayor Tirsell, explaining why members refused to put the question on the ballot a few weeks ago.

"In the four years since I've been on the council, it's been mentioned about two times in public meetings," she added, noting that she has no personal preference to either the appointive or elective system.

Council member John Staley believes an elected mayor would require a salary, a staff and would change the focus of power from the city council to the mayor's office.

"At some point (in a growing population) a city needs an elected mayor, but I don't believe we've reached it yet," concluded Staley.

Disagreeing, Turner points out that Newark and Union City both have elected mayors, yet those populations are around the same as Livermore's.

William Frates, 93, still lives on the Livermore ranch his father homesteaded over a hundred years ago.

How he's survived a world gone crazy

LIVERMORE — For William Frates, 93, time has erased a way of life he enjoyed despite the long hours of hard work it took to survive.

Frates still lives on the ranch site his father homesteaded nine miles outside Livermore over a hundred years ago. Frates has since expanded the acreage from 160 to 300.

His father's original homestead cabin is still on the premises plus a 130-year-old house the father built later. Frates lives in the latter house to which additions have been made.

Frates said his mother walked to a nearby neighbor's house and gave birth to him in their cool cellar since the day he was born was very hot.

He grew up on his father's ranch learning the chores necessary for survival. In his time, Frates said he had learned carpentry, blacksmithing, hay baling, riding, roping, fence mending plus a myriad of other things.

Third jewelry heist here in one week

DUBLIN — Burglars took four diamond rings valued at $1,100 from Louis Costet Jeweler on Village Parkway Friday, the third such heist to Valley jewelry stores in a week.

Five persons entered the store at 7469 Village Parkway about 4 p.m. Friday. Two women asked to look at pendants at the rear of the store, while their three male companions stood near display cases.

The jeweler became suspicious of their actions and checked his stock as soon as they left. He discovered that four rings were missing.

Deputies listed three black men and two black women, all in their twenties, as suspects.

Last Monday thieves used a similar approach to take diamonds rings worth $4,000 from a Pleasanton jewelry shop and returned the next day to unsuccessfully attempt the same act again. Police are looking for a white couple in connection with that theft.

Chamber talks

Ward's looking at a Dublin store site

DUBLIN — Montgomery Ward & Co. is interested in building an "80,000 square-foot plus" retail store and automotive center on Dublin Boulevard, according to the Dublin chamber of commerce.

A representative of the Chicago-based firm discussed preliminary drawings of the store with chamber director Dave Burton last week. He said Ward was considering the 35-acre parcel adjacent to the Mervyn's and Payless stores on Regional St. as part of a major shopping center with stores, restaurants, bank offices and other businesses.

"Ward said Dublin is the site or there won't be one in this area and the chamber of commerce has gone on record as supporting this plan," Burton said.

Tentatively, the Ward store would be built adjacent to Mervyn's and a Gemco outlet would go up behind the Payless, according to Burton. The proposed site has long been preferred by the chamber as part of a major shopping center and past plans to subdivide the lot had been opposed by the group.

Diablo hiker injured

A 22-year-old Pacifica woman injured in a fall while climbing Mt. Diablo Sunday is reported in satisfactory condition at John Muir Hospital.

Virginia Lampkin reportedly sustained a compound fracture of the left leg after she fell an estimated 40 feet. Other hikers near the summit of the mountain said Lampkin had attempted to rappel the mountain, descend it through a series of jumps, when she fell.

Coming to terms

The Valley Community Services District (VCS) will reconsider a draft sewer agreement with the City of Pleasanton.

Tonight, a working draft of the sewer agreement will be presented to VCS directors when they convene at their general office, 7051 Dublin Blvd at 7:30 p.m.

Rap Sheet

Suspect turns himself in

LIVERMORE — A 20-year-old Livermore man, sought for questioning in connection with burglary, auto theft and assault in San Leandro, turned himself in to police here Sunday.

Jeffery Arthur Jones of 1969 Buena Vista Avenue was booked on suspicion of burglary, auto theft and assault on a police officer.

According to police, a set of keys was stolen from a San Leandro residence Saturday evening. Burglars apparently used those keys to steal a car there.

A San Leandro police officer later spotted a car driving recklessly and went to talk with the driver who had stopped. As the officer leaned in the driver's side window, the car started up and drove off.

The car hit a telephone pole a short distance away and the driver fled on foot, evading police.

Jones was listed as a possible suspect after the officer picked his picture from a photo line-up.

Jones talked with Livermore police Saturday and turned himself over to police custody Sunday.

PLEASANTON — More than $2,000 in tack supplies were taken from Oaktree Farms on Foothill Road Friday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Burglars cut fencing, pried two locks and entered an unlocked barn. Once inside they took 60 leather and nylon halters, two saddles and other goods.

Deputies lifted fingerprints at the scene. The investigation is continuing.

PLEASANTON — A mobile home park resident who got out of his car to remove lumber that was blocking the park's exit was twice hit with rocks, police reported.

Jeffery Paul Green was hit once in the head as he got out of his car, and again while looking for the rock throwers.

Police said the lumber was apparently taken from housing construction in the Vintage Hills area. There are no suspects.

DUBLIN — A family just moving into a Rampart Drive home was greeted by the theft of a stereo system and $60 cash Friday, police reported.

William Sabbagh told deputies that the family decided to stay in a motel because the moving company had not arrived with their furniture. When they returned to the home, they discovered that a $400 stereo and $60 in coins were missing.

Three fingerprints were lifted at the scene. The investigation is continuing.

LIVERMORE — Burglars pried open the rear sliding glass door to Jon Paul Zbasnik's Camelia Drive home Sunday and took a stereo system valued at $845, police reported.

Fingerprints were lifted at the crime scene. This was the second burglary at the home in a week.

LIVERMORE — A Dover Way resident was beaten by two men who told him they had a job application for him, police reported.

Dean Stephen Paculba told officers that two men knocked on his door and said they had a job application for him. When they walked outside, the two men struck Paculba and kicked him before driving off, police said.

The victim received cuts and bruises. The investigation is continuing.

LIVERMORE — Police arrested a 15-year-old Concord youth Saturday on suspicion of possessing marijuana while driving a stolen car, officers reported.

The car was pulled over at First and McLeod streets because it had no registration tabs. A computer check showed the car had been stolen from Concord, police said.

The youth was booked on suspicion of auto theft and simple possession of marijuana.

DUBLIN — Burglars forced their way into a York Drive home Friday and stole an assortment of valuables, deputies reported.

Gail Sandles said she returned to her York Drive home Friday and discovered a gold dollar, two coin sets, a ring, calculator and watch missing.

Deputies said burglars had pried open a rear sliding glass door to gain entry. There are no suspects.

PLEASANTON — A power saw valued at $400 was taken from the bed of a pick-up truck parked on Bonita Avenue Friday, police reported.

Charles Andrew Hageman said the saw and a can of gasoline were taken from in front of his house. There are no suspects.

PLEASANTON — A stereo system valued at $640 was taken from a Muirwood Drive home Friday, police reported.

No signs of forced entry were found. The investigation is continuing.

LIVERMORE — Two concrete statues were taken from the front yard of Connie Westbrook's mobile home Sunday, police reported.

A three-foot tall Buddha and a 30-inch lion were reported missing from the Sunburst Lane home. They were valued at $170.

Rancher who's lived change

Schooling consisted of three years in a one-room school called Arroyo Bayou. The school's name was later changed to Del Valle. He said after he learned some reading, writing and arithmetic he stopped going to school at age 13.

After his father died in 1928, Frates took over running the ranch. Besides working for himself, he said he and neighbors pitched in and helped each other when a large job made sharing the load necessary.

"I remember helping Tom Hawley drive cattle from the Livermore mountains to the alfalfa fields. We never put cattle in feed lots in those days. We just let them graze and I can tell you the meat was better than it is now because of the grazing."

Hawley was foreman of the Patterson Ranch, according to Frates. He said neighbors used to join in on cattle roundups two or three times a year.

Frates remembered Indians living nearby who ate fish, grasshoppers and ground corn.

"One time a lot of them got some kind of fever. The mothers would dip their sick babies in running streams to cool the fever but great numbers of the children died."

When he was in his twenties, Frates said Livermore was a wide spot in the road with board sidewalks made of 2x12 planks.

"You hit a loose board with your boots and it sure made a clatter," Frates said. And the streets were so dusty, water wagons were used to dampen the dirt."

He admitted weekend nights were often "lively" in Livermore.

"After a rancher worked hard all week, he would sometimes take the $5 he had earned and go to a Livermore saloon and raise a little hell. You'd often see barroom doors flying open and cowboys coming through them in a fist fight."

He added that about all Dublin had in those days was a blacksmith shop and a store.

"Walnut Creek was nothing then. San Ramon had a fellow there who made boots and Danville was a little bit of a town."

Besides saloons, Livermore had three hotels, a couple of churches plus a grocery store where you could charge items and not pay up until the end of the year, Frates reported.

"I'd like to know where all these people who are here now came from."

More sedate people found their fun at neighborhood dances and barbecues, Frates said.

"There used to be a lodge group of some kind called the Holy Ghost who put on good barbecues."

He explained a typical ranch day began at 3 a.m. and ended around 9 or 10 p.m.

In between those hours, they first fed and harnessed "eight head of horses" then ate breakfast. The horses were hitched up to a haypress that pressed hay into bales. The horses had to be changed every 20 minutes they became so winded, Frates explained.

Lunch was served at 9 a.m., dinner at noon, a snack at 4 p.m. and supper at 8 p.m.

"We ate a lot but we worked hard and had to have good food and lots of it," Frates said.

He said cattle roundups were a lot easier than baling hay.

"We didn't have to get up until 5 a.m. to head out the cattle."

Frates said he thought the whole world had gone crazy today.

"Take clothes for instance. I used to pay four bits for a pair of blue jeans that lasted a good long time. Now they charge me $12 for a pair that aren't the same kind of pants they used to make."

A good blue shirt cost 35 cents; three pair of socks, a quarter, Frates stated.

A cord of wood cost $7, wages for mining chrome were $2 a day.

Frates lamented today's "outrageous prices" plus various rules and regulations not prevalent in "his day."

"But I don't care what they do any more. I'm done."

— by Sue Vogelsanger

On the Frates ranch, this barn was sometimes used to shelter farm animals and saddle horses.

Livermore school improvements

Implementation of the state's new school improvement program, a product of the school finance bill passed by the state legislature in September, will be discussed at the regular trustees' meeting of the Livermore Valley Unified School District tonight.

The district has planned to form a citizen advisory committee similar to the existing school site selection councils to advise the superintendent on setting improvement priorities and a district-wide master plan. The school improvement program has been designed to replace the existing Early Childhood Education program (ECE) which stressed community involvement in school planning and curricula.

Anger over airport delay

"It's been bantered back and forth for several years and now to have it delayed by clerical staff is just too much," angrily declared Chairman John Kerekes. He recommended advising Robinson that "our next action will be a letter to Pete Stark."

He added, "All I've ever heard is words. You (Lee) have talked to Robinson and (Fred) Isaacs (Robinson's boss) and have reported verbally back to us, but we've never seen anything in writing."

Lee reminded Kerekes that part of the delay, over the last three years, was a conflicting appraisal by Livermore, where the appraiser quoted one figure in a letter and a different figure in the formal appraisal.

The subject of the West

Clear Zone overflowed into the discussion of the East Maestas, airport supervisors.

Kerekes persisted with his idea of contacting Stark. "I would like to see something in writing from the FAA that says 'No, you're not getting anything this year but maybe next year' and I'd like to take that rejection in writing to Pete Stark."

Noting that the Livermore Airport has never bothered Stark with its problems, he added, "We want protection not for the airport (from encroachment by housing developments) but for the citizens. For the first time let's let the Congress speak up for us."

Lee agreed to write a letter to the FAA and one to Stark telling him of the airport's concern.

The commission is concerned about encroachment by housing on the East Clear Zone and South Approach Protection where future hangars are proposed. The members agreed that notifying Stark might create "congressional awareness which might insure more funds next October when the fiscal year begins," as Steve Patenaude put it.

The stalled paperwork for West Clear Zone involves 13 acres, funded 80 per cent by federal funds and 20 per cent locally and costing a total of about $81,000. The proposed East Clear Zone, now mainly 198 acres of agricultural land, would cost $600,000, with the city funding only 10 per cent or $60,000. And the badly needed South Approach Protection, 18 and a half acres, would cost $120,000.

Administrator contract plan at meeting

Consideration of contracts for administrative personnel, including Superintendent Bruce Newlin and the three assistant superintendents, will be the subject of a joint closed session of the Amador and Pleasanton school boards Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

The meeting will be held at the district offices, 123 Main St., Pleasanton.

Evaluations of administrative personnel are also part of the annual contract reviews.

Newlin came to the district from Lancaster in 1974. He is presently in the second year of a three-year contract with an annual salary of $37,000.

The three assistant superintendents, Doug Rose, Carl Krause and Neil Sweezy, are on one year contracts.

The personnel items and the executive session are the only items on the joint board agenda.

Harsh PD

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police Chief Charles R. Gain claims he is the victim of vicious police brutality — the work of his own department.

Gain has used a liberal law enforcement approach since taking over the department in January, 1976, drawing criticism from many influential San Francisco police veterans.

"This is a very vicious city and police department," Gain said Sunday in an angry interview. He was upset over rumors he had been cited for driving without a valid license.

SR early admission

DANVILLE—The San Ramon Valley Unified School District is implementing their policy on early admission to kindergarten this year, for the first time.

The policy allows youngsters who, because of a late birthday, just miss kindergarten to apply for "early admission" to that program. This means children may enter school on their fifth birthday rather than waiting until the next September.

To be eligible for early admission under the new policy, a child must have completed one full year of nursery school and have reached his fifth birthday before Dec. 20, 1977. Parents interested in pursuing this option should contact the principal of the elementary school for their attendance area and discuss the possibility of early admission for their child.

Applications must be submitted to principals for next year by Nov. 22. Forms can be obtained by contacting individual schools.

Valley Campus engineers

HAYWARD—South County Community College District trustees tonight will act on employment of engineers for the fourth phase of development at Chabot College Valley Campus.

Board members meet in Building 200 of the Chabot Hayward Campus at 7:30 p.m.

The board will also act on agreements providing clinical facilities for the hospital pharmacy and medical records technician programs, receive a report from Superintendent Reed Buffington on commuter and public library course offerings, adopt the educational program and facilities priorities for 1977-81 and hold a study session on computer services.

Amador in concert

PLEASANTON—The music department at Amador Valley High School will present its annual Amador Jazz Concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Featured will be "Solar Eclipse," composed of saxophonist Russ Greilich, drummer Paul Campana, bass player Pat Hagerty, Greg Moore on keyboards, and Don Stefani.

Also featured will be the Amador lab jazz band, under the direction of Doug Balaban, and the school jazz combo, directed by James Campana.

Goals for Murray

PLEASANTON—Murray School District Superintendent Jessie Kobayashi will discuss district plans and goals at a meeting tonight of the Donlon School Parent-Faculty Club.

The meeting, open to the public, is scheduled for 8 p.m. in C Pod of the school located at 4150 Dorman Rd.

SF school chief boosts statewide pay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco school Superintendent Robert Alioto said today the statewide setting of teacher salaries would take a damaging monkey off the backs of California school districts.

Testifying before the State Senate Committee on Education which is studying teachers salaries, Alioto decried the adversary relationship which now exists between teachers and their districts.

He added, "That relationship is debilitating; it detracts from the board's ability to direct attention to educational issues... there are strikes now that are lasting a month and more in the Bay Area."

Alioto, who began his testimony by saying he wasn't an advocate or proponent of the statewide setting of teacher salaries, spent much of his time doing exactly that.

At one point, Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, asked the superintendent whether that position wouldn't hand over all power to the state and strip districts of authority and responsibility in non-fund areas.

"Doesn't he who pays the piper call the tune?" Behr asked.

Alioto said he didn't agree with that view, saying negotiation of contracts by districts set one district against another, a procedure he said was not in the interests of the public or the students.

Another in favor of statewide teacher salary-setting was James Reusswig, superintendent of the Vallejo Unified School District.

There is only one party in the state, he said, with the power to match the teachers power to withhold services—the legislature.

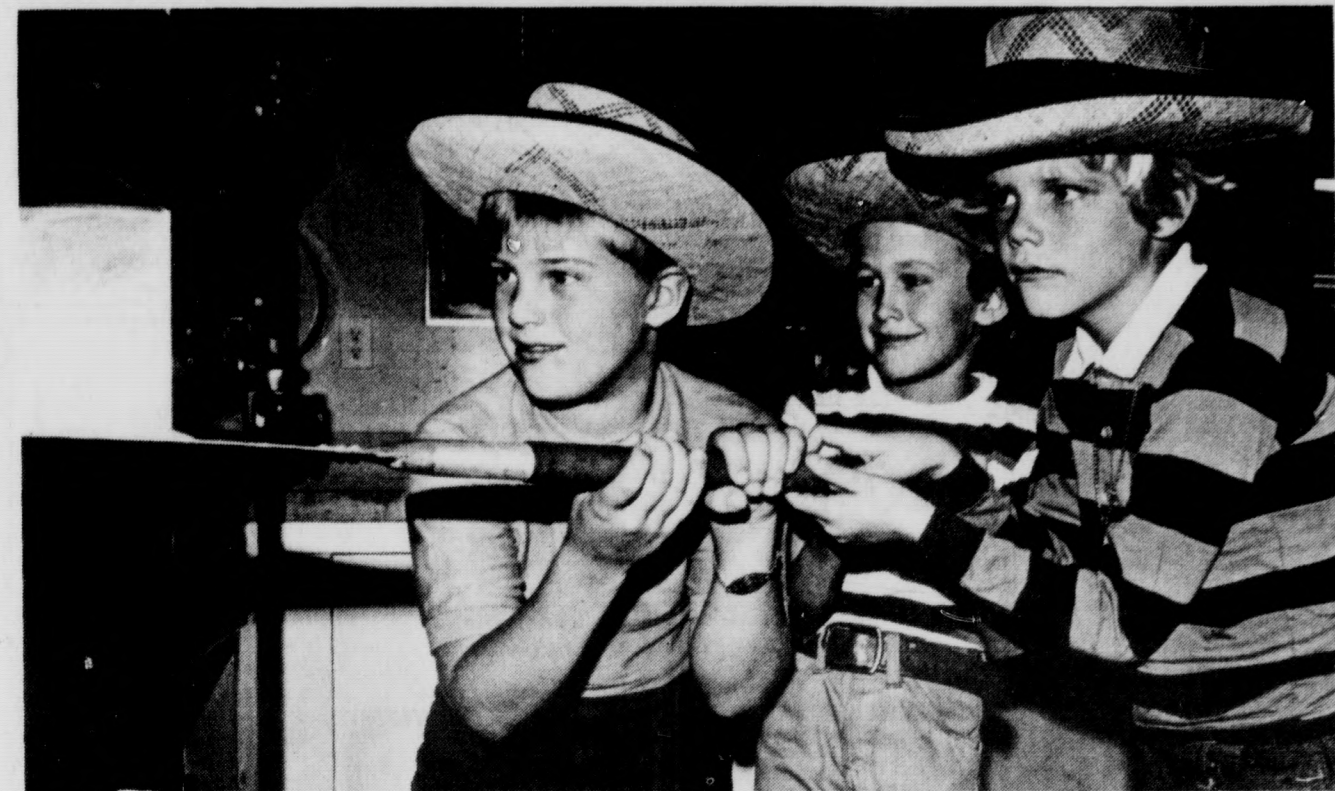

"The greatest interests of children and youth would best be served by a statewide teachers' salary schedule negotiated between a statewide teachers exclusive agent and the legislature," he said.

"Not only would such a model ease or eliminate community friction, it would better enable employees and employers to concentrate on children and youth, it would eliminate gross disparities between and among teachers."

James Ballard, president of the San Francisco Federation of Teachers and an executive of American Federation of Teachers, said he was opposed to statewide setting of salaries.

For one thing, he said, other matters such as working conditions and terms of employment come into picture. But even if were not for those elements, he would still be against it, he said.

"It blows my mind. It's extremely clumsy and complicated dealing with the San Francisco school district," he said, adding he could imagine what it would be like dealing "with several San Franciscos."

Lotsa' pizza tonight

Third-graders David Bevers and Mike Magstadt and second-grader Mike Anderson, right, ladle a pizza into the oven at Straw Hat Pizza, locale of tonight's "Pizza Night" to benefit Vintage Hills School. Summer European study tours planned

Larry R. Moore, teacher of the German language at Amador Valley High School, and several other teachers in the Valley are working with Pacific American Institute in San Francisco and presenting a 23-day study tour program in Europe for students age 14-20.

TME tour leaves July 25 and returns Aug. 16 and will cover London, Rome, Florence, Innsbruck, Paris and back to London.

Students will have the opportunity to learn about famous places, their history, the people involved, and their culture prior to departure through informal orientation sessions. Moore and several others have been involved with summer tours for students for many years and realize that most of the learning takes place through absorption and with involvement in activities dealing with that particular culture. Study activity units have been finalized and written into short class sessions. All students are chaperoned by qualified teachers. Professional guides and native instructors are hired for tours and lectures. Students will have ample time for their free time activities to pursue their hobbies and interests.

Other teachers working with Moore are John McDonald from Dublin High School, who will serve as the American instructor. He will work closely with the native instructors to provide a good academic program. Bud Benetti from Foothill High School will also serve with PAI as a counselor and chaperone. He is new to the program, but his wife has been a participant in a former summer program.

Pacific American Institute has been actively involved in the educational programs for foreign students who wish to come to America and learn English. It has established schools throughout the United States. As well as helping South American, Japanese, and European students learn English and American culture, it has provided American students a chance to see Europe and to learn its cultures with summer programs. PAI is well-established throughout Europe with over eight offices in various countries.

Moore is hoping to fill this program with 40 students. Teachers from San Ramon and Livermore areas will also be involved.

Chiropractic Health Hints

BY DR. RAYMOND SERAFIN, D.C.

A NATURAL HEALTH FAMILY PRACTICE

IF YOU DO NOT ENJOY GOOD HEALTH

CONSULT YOUR CHIROPRACTOR FIRST

DON'T NEGLECT THE WARNING OF A HEADACHE

Pain is nature's warning that all is not well with you. Therefore if you are subject to headaches, the reasonable thing to do is to try to discover what ailment is causing your head to ache. Instead of taking a pain killer and letting the matter go at that. If the cause of your distress can be found and removed, your headaches will disappear.

The causes of chronic headache are many and varied. One of the more frequent causes of headache is poor elimination. Because some organ is not working properly, poisons accumulate in the blood and affect the brain cells, causing in most cases a dull headache.

A frequent cause of headache is a digestive disturbance, due to bad food, or disorders of the stomach, liver or bowels.

A constant throbbing ache in the top of the head is often the result of high blood pressure, which in turn is caused by disease of the heart, kidneys, arteries or by nervousness.

A type of headache that seems to be getting more common is due to nerve exhaustion. Overwork, loss of sleep and a fast pace use up nervous energy faster than it can be restored. In this way, nerve exhaustion comes on gradually, and one of its symptoms is headache, usually felt in the back of the head where the skull joins the neck.

Eye strain is another cause of headache. In some cases it is in the forehead, but in others it is in the back of the head where the sight centers in the brain are located.

Sinus trouble can cause a most severe headache, over the eyes, across the front of the face, or even over the entire head.

Of all types of headache, one of the most common is due to nerve pressure at the spine. An ache from this cause may be felt in any part of the head and is sometimes accompanied by a feeling of tightness at the base of the skull.

If you suffer headaches see your chiropractor for a thorough physical check-up. He can provide relief and also correct the cause of your distressing headaches.

For more information on THE WARNING OF A HEADACHE call Dr. R.J. Serafin DC at 846-4732 or write 60 Mission Dr., Pleasanton.

Hasseltine's fast start Energy and mass transit on 1980 campaign

DANVILLE — Supervisor Eric Hasseltine is beginning his 1980 re-election bid a few years early with the founding of a $100-a-head breakfast club.

In the first month, more than 100 San Ramon Valley supporters have joined the club, which will finance both Hasseltine's 1980 campaign and his interim political expenses.

"It's hard to go ask people for money...but the fact is if you don't raise any money, you're not going to have much of a campaign," said Hasseltine.

Hasseltine estimated that a supervisory campaign costs between $30,000 and $40,000. The fifth-district supervisor said the costs of dinners, advertisements in programs for various special events, office equipment and materials, and a newsletter to be published at the end of the year will be paid partially from breakfast-club dues.

The money will be used to finance expenses "purely political in nature," he said.

Hasseltine said he's been advised to take collections from constituents who attend his six monthly community liaison meetings.

"But, I don't in any way suggest anybody has to be a friend of mine or make a contribution to get to see me."

The breakfast club sessions — to be held about four times a year — are campaign fund-raisers that include persons from throughout the district.

But, he said, while about 15 persons have joined from the far east end of the county, and a few from Antioch and Pittsburg, most are from the San Ramon Valley.

About two-thirds of those who signed up actually attended the October breakfast, he said.

While Hasseltine admitted that $100 a person is "a little high," he said up to $200 a year in political contributions are tax deductible.

He also said he scrapped a proposed plan for a "49er" club, which would have accepted members for a fee of $49 each. That way contributors would not have to report the donations publicly.

"The more I thought about it, the more uncomfortable I got," he said.

He said it "would look pretty strange" if he collected the money for his next campaign from persons whose names he did not disclose.

Eric Hasseltine

Hasseltine also noted that Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, has solicited campaign contributions through a similar organization for several years.

Mass transit rail systems such as BART are less energy-efficient than most bus lines, a government study has concluded.

Considering the energy used to get to and from subway stations — and the fact that subway routes are not always the most direct for travellers — rail systems present the biggest energy drain of all conventional modes of urban transportation, the report says.

The 98-page study was prepared by the Congressional Budget Office for a Senate Environment and Public Works subcommittee.

tee.

In general, the report found that subway systems consume more energy because passengers drive their cars — "typically with only one or two passengers" — to reach subway stations.

In addition, newer subways use more energy for moving rail cars than the old systems, the report says.

The bus saves energy because it is usually easy to walk to and takes the passenger on a more direct route to his or her location. Also, the report said, buses can accommodate many commuters who would otherwise drive to work.

A bus requires only about half the energy of new rail systems such as BART, the report says. In addition, the report contends that additional bus services can be operated at little or not expense to the public, and that giving buses priority in traffic could greatly enhance the attractiveness and patronage of bus service.

The report found that maintenance and station costs pose a significant increase in the amount of energy required by mass-transit rail systems.

For example, when measured in BTUs (British Thermal Units), BART station and maintenance costs are almost twice those of urban bus lines, the report said.

The report drew some comparisons with bus lines elsewhere. It says while 60 percent of all BART passengers drive to stations, only 27 percent of those riding a bus line in Washington, D.C. drive, saving a considerable amount of energy.

Braced

Residents along Spring Street in Pleasanton might be thinking that Pacific Gas & Electric Company is going through a lumber shortage from the looks of this pole, but that's not the case.

The utility poles on that street have been sawed off at the bottom and lashed to new "stubs" until PG & E can replace some old circuits. Motorists will have to be careful not to knock the blocks out from under the old poles until work is completed next month.

A PG & E spokesman, Cecil Bebee said that such voltage and circuit improvements will ultimately be done all over the Valley. "When we get finished," he said "the telephone company will transfer their equipment to the new poles."

TO REASON WITH A HABIT IS TO REASON WITH A STONE

I will list a few pointers here to assist those thousands of my readers who are serious about quitting the smoking habit. For those who are not serious, I will use ridicule. And for those for which all else fails, I will resort to reason.

Substitute something for the cigarette so that the hand is fooled into thinking it is holding the obnoxious weed, possibly using celery sticks, pencils, or rolled up racing forms soaked in creosote.

If that doesn't appeal to you, get rid of your matches, as cigarette are much less harmful if they are not lit.

For those who refuse to take that advice, I offer ridicule. Think of how silly you look blowing in and out through a wad of weeds. Why would one put on such a moronic display as inhaling acrid smoke, unless trying to get on the Gong show?

Okay, it's probably useless, but reason is all I have left to convince you. Lung Cancer is the best reason of all to stop smoking. One death in six in the U.S. is caused by cancer. Why die young?

And your face will age much faster if you smoke. Think of the difference in surface quality between a shrivelled, smoked hallibut, and a moist, fresh fish. Have you looked in the mirror lately?

Even reason cannot always convince people to throw off a harmful habit. William Drummond said "He who will not reason is a bigot, he who cannot is a fool; and he who dares not is a slave." If you are a slave to smoking, today is the day to quit. I know you can do it.

The cost in dollars is another reason to stop. Think of the families who could invest in gold mines in South America if much of their income were not wasted on tobacco.

Then, there are all those countless table tops that have been marred by cigarette scorches through eons of time. That's a good reason.

The American Indians, those great chiefs with wizened faces, had dignified reasons for smoking their ceremonial pipes. Achieving peace was worth the side-effects.

But would we take the ceremony of certain primitive tribes of painting their faces and bodies with red ochre mud, and would we allow ourselves to get carried away until it became a habit, with different brands of face mud competing for our ochre dollars?

Would we let face mud painting become abused to such an extent that we could not stop, and would we keep piling the red ochre on until our pores could not breathe, until we smothered to death in our own ochre, until babies fell into and drowned in ochre vats all over America, until further tragedy struck those too weak to break out of the dried mud shell they had encased themselves in, to simply curl up and die like cocoons in mud coffins?

And so it is with primitive habits, such as smoking, which have been carried to ridiculous lengths. And so it is with reason.

I try, but as Nicholas of Cusa said in "Learned Ignorance," "The greatest danger against which men have warned us is that which comes, from communicating intellectual secrets to minds become subservient to the authority of an inveterate habit, for such is the power of a long lasting observance, that most men prefer death to giving up their way of life."

Carol Waugh, a "super" for the San Francisco Opera, looks just like a normal student — until she gets on her costume for "Turandot" (right).

She's not an opera star, she's an opera 'super'

She dresses up in a pink padded mandarin outfit and pants, and gets on the typical work make-up — blue pancake, waxed eyebrows, silver eyeshadow and pink lipstick.

Then it's off to the stage of the San Francisco Opera House, where she has performed among the world's greatest opera singers. And where Prince Charles conceded that she was "exotic-looking."

Carolyn Waugh is not a star, but she doesn't mind.

She's what's known to opera fans as a "super" — those costumed people who stand on stage during a production, holding gold chests, spears or simply living up the frequently festive opera atmosphere.

Carolyn very nearly made operatic history — she tried out for the part of the nude slave girl in the present production of Puccini's "Turandot." That would have given her a chance to perform in the buff for Prince Charles on his recent Bay Area visit.

But, as fate would have it, the 22-year-old English major at U.C. Berkeley ended up with something a bit different. She appeared as "a munchkin" in Wagner's "Das Rheingold" and in "Turandot" she appears onstage to offer world-famous tenor Luciano Pavarotti a box of gold.

The role of the super, says the U.C. Berkeley student, is at once both difficult and fascinating.

"It takes us an hour to get made up" for "Turandot," she says, "and we're only on stage for 90 seconds."

The work, which pays $3 per performance, involves evening and weekend rehearsals for each production, the costuming and make-up required of every performer, and "lots of waiting around," says Carolyn.

But, she adds, it does have rewards. And lots of them.

Carolyn performed "Turandot" the night Prince Charles attended, and was a first-hand witness to the "ecstatic" atmosphere around the stage that night.

"Everyone was happy, excited that night," she recalls. "It was infectious, and there was a great performance."

After that heady opening, Prince Charles visited backstage, where he stopped Carolyn — still decked out in her blue makeup and waist-long human hair wig — and said she was "exotic-looking."

"He's very attractive and personable," she says, "and he has beautiful skin."

Later that evening, she bumped into Richard Thomas of the "Waltons" fame backstage. And prior to that, Luciano Pavarotti, known to millions as perhaps the world's greatest tenor, had come up to her at a rehearsal. "He kissed me on the forehead," Carolyn smiles, "and called all of us 'My girls, my jewels.'"

If all that isn't enough to make an opera fan's heart pitter-patter with joy, Carolyn says that the many rehearsals with stars like Monserat Caballe and famous directors like Kurt Herbert Adler might just be enough to turn your head.

"Everyone is very professional," she says. "There's a lot of camaraderie in the company" and the atmosphere is just "spectacular."

The adventure of supering started for Carolyn with an answer to a "New West" classified ad. "I was originally asked to be a nude" in

"Turandot," she says. At the first meeting for the company supers, Carolyn was one of the women asked to stay later, after everyone else had gone. "We thought, 'Oh no, casting couch...'" But the man, she said, "tried to make it clear that we were the right body type" for the part of the nude slave girl.

Since she had worked as a studio model for some Livermore Adult Education classes, Carolyn decided to try out, insisting that "I've never been afraid of being on stage."

She had to face director Jean-Pierre Ponelle, and "took everything off." Then, "he had me run across the room."

Though, in the end, she was considered too tall for the part of an Oriental slave, Carolyn still loves her roles.

There was the fun of "screaming coast to coast" on national radio when "Rheingold" was broadcast live from the San Francisco Opera.

There's the thrill of seeing the opera "from a different perspective" and watching "the different ways that directors handle their work."

And, there's the fun of being transformed, for each performance night, into a slinky woman with waist-long hair or a dirty, slave-like creature wearing tatters and rags.

Sometimes, however, "the rehearsals can be painful," Carolyn notes with a wry smile. At one "Turandot" workout, Carolyn and some of the other supers were told to wear cloggy sandals for their trip on stage with the box of gold.

"We told anyone who would listen," she says, "that we couldn't walk in those things." Experience, however, proved her point. During a major dress rehearsal, Carolyn's entire group of girls tripped and scattering costumes, people, and an entire box of gold that was so solemnly being brought out. "They had to stop the whole show," she laughs.

Nevertheless, she adds, "I really love the work. It gives me my fix of being on stage."

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been married for ten years and my husband has always been a very excitable man. If something goes wrong at his office, or if there's a lot of traffic on the way home, he may explode if dinner isn't ready on time. When this happens, he sometimes hits me. He's never hit the children. I'd never stand for that and he knows it. I've gotten used to his mean streak. Not that I like it, but I don't see there's much I can do about it. Last week, he went on a rampage. I ended up with a black eye and a swollen arm. My neighbor was shocked when I told her. She said I should report him. Since he doesn't bother the kids, I don't know if I should. —A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: Your husband's actions are very destructive to your children even though he may never hit them. After all, they are aware that a man they should love and respect is beating their mother. It's bound to have a profound emotional and psychological effect. This is an extremely unhealthy environment for your family.

I believe you should try to reason with your husband when he's not angry. Tell him that you will not tolerate physical abuse. If he attacks you, call for help. Call the police, and if they take no action, then take the children and get out of the house. Go to a neighbor's, to a hotel, to the police station, or to a community service organization in your area.

Children who witness violence in the home grow up believing that violence is the acceptable way to cope with problems. Children model themselves on their parents. Take action immediately to protect them and yourself.

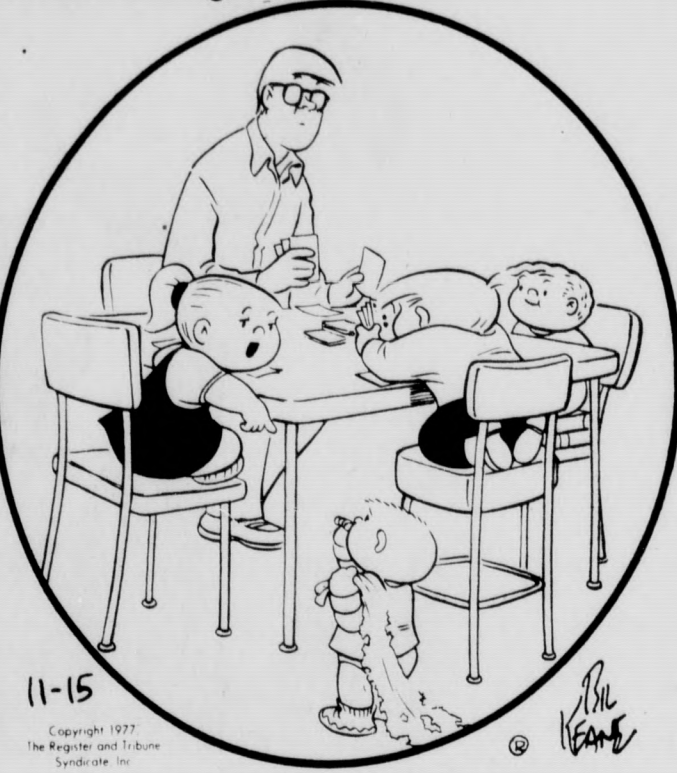

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is a professional athlete and our 14-year-old son is also deeply involved in sports. They both suffer so much when they lose, it upsets me terribly and I find it difficult to handle. My husband often goes off by himself and won't talk to anyone in the family for days. His temper often gets out of hand when he loses. He becomes angry over the slightest thing, and verbally abuses me and our son. There's no joy living with this kind of rage and temperament. I can see my son taking on the same attitudes and I don't know if I can cope with two males who behave like children everytime they lose—M.J.

DEAR M.J.: Unless your husband changes his behavior, you can expect to have an increasing problem with your son. Children imitate their parents who are their role models. This is especially true when the father is in a profession the son may aspire to.

It would be ideal if your son or husband could put more emphasis on competing against himself, but I realize this is something over which you have little control. A person's goal should be to do better than he did before as this provides the greatest impetus for growth.

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

"You're ears have something in common with my floor... waxy build-up!"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—My problem is cardiac irregularity. I have many extra beats that occur all at one time with the feeling that the heart is struggling to beat regularly, but cannot come out of it. It is most frightening when they occur that way. An occasional one I can tolerate, but this scares me a lot.

They occur at any time, even at night while asleep. I work hard at trying to put them out of my mind, but then I'll read where they can mean sudden death and I'll be very upset.

Is it true they can mean sudden death? My clinic has several doctors, and one tells me to rest when they occur, another one tells me to exercise, and I have a feeling the others would tell me something else. I'm confused as to what is the solution and cause. Can you tell me?

I'm 48, in the menopause, 5 feet 10, weigh 155. I don't smoke, drink coffee or liquor, only about three cups of tea a day.

I'm on a very tiny amount of thyroid that my doctor says is not really needed according to the test, but might prove helpful anyway. My doctor says he has no idea what causes my extra beats. Can you shed some light on it please?

DEAR READER—Extra beats, skipped beats, flip flops or whatever you want to call them, are rather common. You have to judge their importance by the rest of the patient's health status. In a person such as yourself, who apparently has no evidence of heart disease as you would see with abnormal heart sounds, heart pain or high blood pressure, they may have little significance other than the discomfort they cause you.

We also know that nervousness can make matters worse. Tea contains caffeine, and you might as well stop that. Coffee, tea, colas, cigarettes, anything that upsets the digestion can increase the frequency of these.

I saw a lot of these in the young health men in the U.S. Air Force flying personnel. Our group studied over 120,000 records and such extra beats were common.

We know that they are caused by a spot in the heart that is overactive. Sometimes it is because a person is born with an "extra sparkplug" so to speak to run the heart, and every once in a while it gets a chance to fire in between regular beats and upsets the normal rhythm of the heart beat. Such a spot can also be caused by injury to the heart muscle. An injured spot takes on the characteristics of an extra sparkplug.

We know that when they occur in people with no other evidence of heart disease, they are not harmful. But those that are caused by injury to the heart such as a recent heart attack may herald the onset of a dangerous irregularity of the heart. So, they can be unimportant from a health point of view, or life threatening. Let me emphasize again that most people who have these do not have serious heart disease and are not going to suddenly drop dead.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

At Thunderbird Park, in British Columbia, one can see tall poles decorated with carvings of animals, birds, fish, and other objects in nature.

The poles, called totem poles, were carved by the early Indians of the Pacific Northwest. The carved and painted faces represented the Indians' totem animals. The animals were revered as their mythical ancestors and guardian spirits.

Each Indian clan had its own sacred totem animals. The totem animals were usually carved on a tall pole erected in front of the clan's lodge.

The top figure was the totem of the entire clan, while the lower figures represented the other important totems connected with the clan and its history.

Each clan took its name from its totem. One, for instance, was the Raven clan, another the Bear clan, and so on. There were rules against harming the animal to which the totem belonged.

It's important this coming year that you take advantage of all opportunities to update your knowledge in your chosen field. Sudden advancement is likely if you're prepared to handle it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be realistic regarding targets you set for yourself today. You could be disappointed by biting off more than you can chew and wound your pride needlessly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are very clever and resourceful today in dealing with material matters. In matters of the heart, however, you're governed more by emotions than by wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Associating with friends in important today, and it should prove enjoyable. Just take care not to become immersed in their personal problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Important tasks should be tackled early in the day when your stick-to-itiveness is the strongest. Your attention wanes as the clock winds down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're involved with high rollers and free spenders today, you're likely to follow suit. They may be able to afford it, but can you?

We don't remember the poet's name, but someone wrote: "The man who is worthwhile is the man who can smile, when all his futilities go wrong."

That is if he makes his contract with them all wrong. Not if he smiles after going down.

West cashed two high clubs and shifted to the six of diamonds. South rose with dummy's ace and thought things over. He decided that East surely held both missing kings. How could he keep one of them from taking a trick against him?

His first thought was to run off all his trumps and come down to ace-queen of spades and queen of diamonds in dummy. East would be down to a singleton king and a guarded king and all South would have to do would be to guess which was the singleton.

South found a better play. He ruffed dummy's last club, played a few rounds of trumps, led his last diamond to dummy's 10 and left East on lead with no way to do anything but give up.

Of course, West could have beaten the hand if he had led his diamond at trick two, but West was not looking at all the cards.

McCovey grabs another award

Giant first baseman Willie McCovey added another honor to his lengthy list of awards today when he was named winner of the Fred Hutchinson Memorial Award.

The 39-year-old slugger rebounded from a mediocre 1976 season in which he hit .204 with only seven home runs and 36 RBIs. Returning to the Giants last season as a free agent, McCovey hit .280, ripping 28 homers and driving in 86 runs.

Included in those totals were a National League record 17th grand slam and his 2,000th career hit. McCovey edged Bill Buckner of the Cubs and Johnny Bench of Cincinnati in a poll of broadcasters and writers.

"McCovey's margin was the closest in the history of the voting," said Ritter Collett of Dayton who was in charge of tabulating the voting.

"I'm real pleased to be recognized for the year I had," said McCovey. "Not too many people thought I would even be playing last season."

Questionable knees and his age caused McCovey to be bypassed completely in baseball's first free agent draft. He then had to win a job with his old team during a spring training trial.

McCovey is the 13th recipient of the Hutch Award, given annually to a player who overcomes adversity and displays the character and competitive instincts of Hutchinson, who pitched for Detroit and later managed the Tigers, Cardinals and Reds.

"I'm in select company with previous Hutch winners," noted McCovey, who joins the likes of Mickey Mantle, Sandy Koufax, Carl Yastrzemski, Pete Rose and Al Kaline.

McNeill cut by Warriors

The ax fell on Larry McNeill of the Warriors and many other fringe players around the National Basketball Association Monday as teams cut back to the new 11-man roster limit.

"I don't know what I'll do if I get cut. There's no slam dunk competition this year," said McNeill several days ago anticipating his departure. McNeill had kept active in the televised competition last year after being cut by the New York Nets before the Warriors signed him as a free agent in February.

The five-year pro from Marquette had originally played with Kansas City.

McNeill had seen only limited action for the Warriors so far this year but played 19 minutes Sunday night in the Warriors' 97-95 loss to Los Angeles. He scored five points and grabbed seven rebounds, but the showing wasn't good enough to save his job.

The Warriors, like most of the NBA teams, will keep several players on their injured list. Currently on the Warrior list are forward Derrek Dickey and rookie forward Ray Epps. The Warriors can add one more player to the injured list.

Former Stanford player Byron Beck was cut by Denver to make room for Jacky Dorsey. Another ex-Cardinal, Claude Terry, was put on Atlanta's injured list, making room for Tom McMillen, acquired for a second round draft choice from the Knicks.

Former USF star Kevin Restani was trimmed by Milwaukee.

Seattle was the busiest team, trading center Mike Green to San Antonio and releasing veteran Willie Wise and Dean Tolson.

San Antonio's James Silas went on the injured list as did Cleveland's Terry Furlow.

Others cut were Philadelphia guard Mike Dunleavy, Kansas City forward Bob Bigelow, a former No. 1 choice, Boston reserve center Jim Ard, Buffalo rookie Larry Johnson, the team's No. 2 draft choice, and Phoenix rookie Greg Griffin.

Detroit waived Wayman Britt and reactivated forward Al Erberhard.

Claude Terry, who aggravated an ankle injury Saturday night against San Antonio, went on injured reserve for the Atlanta Hawks. Terry played three games and scored six points for the season.

Besides trading Green, the SuperSonics dropped veteran forward Willie Wise and thirdyear man Dean Tolson.

Another trade saw the New York Knicks send former Maryland star Tom McMillen to the Atlanta Hawks for a second-round draft choice next year.

Philadelphia placed secondyear guard Mike Dunleavy on waivers. Dunleavy, the club's No. 4 guard, played in just four games this season. The 76ers still have center Darryl Dawkins on the injured list with a cut finger. When Dawkins returns, the Sixers will have to trade or release another player.

Kansas City cut forward Bob Bigelow, a first-round draft choice in 1975. The 6-foot-7 forward had played in only one game this who had suffered a fractured ankle Oct. 11.

Boston was the first team to reach the new limit by dropping reserve center Jim Ard last week.

Buffalo waived rookie guard Larry Johnson, the Braves' second-round draft pick this year. Johnson played in three games, averaging two points each time.

The Phoenix Suns cut 6-7 rookieow line.

Free agent forward Jacky Dorsey, signed by the Denver Nuggets to bolster their front line, was waived. The Nuggets had to drop 10-year veteran Byron Beck to make room for Dorsey when he was cut by the New Orleans Jazz last summer. Dorsey appeared in seven games this season, averaging three rebounds and shooting 27.3 percent.

Veteran reserve Kevin Restani got waivers from the Milwaukee Bucks. He had averaged 5.7 points and 4.7 rebounds in the three previous seasons.

Teams were permitted to carry up to three men on their injured lists and several clubs placed players in that category.

Oakland Raider quarterback Ken Stabler is sacked by Houston's Gregg Bingham in wild battle at the Coliseum Sunday.

49ers' fourth wasn't easy

NEW ORLEANS — Ray Wersching kicked a 33-yard field goal with 6:33 gone in overtime to give the San Francisco 49ers a 10-7 victory over the New Orleans Saints Sunday in the Superdome, thus providing the 'Niners with their fourth straight win.

It was a game Ken Meyer's San Franciscans had to win in order to maintain their faint NFC playoff hopes. Los Angeles leads the Western division with a 6-3 mark, followed by Atlanta with 5-4. The 49ers are 4-5.

Wersching, a fifth-year pro from the University of California, had missed two previous field goal attempts in the afternoon, but said, "I had to forget about them and concentrate on making the final one."

"This is the first time I had ever kicked a field goal in overtime to win a game in the pros. I talked with punter Tom Wittum before going in for the 33-yard try."

Wersching was lucky to get another kick. The Saints had a chance to win the contest before it went into overtime, but Rich Szaro's 30-yard field goal try hit the left upright and bounced back on to the playing field.

"I was happy to see him miss because it meant I would get another chance," Wersching said.

San Francisco fell behind 7-0 in the first period, as the Saints went 59 yards in 13 plays, with Tony Galbraith going the final eight for the score. The Saints hit paydirt with 11:44 of playing time elapsed.

The first half was one of the most unlikely any pro fan has seen in the way of passing, as the 'Niners' Jim Plunkett failed to complete 10 aerial tries, and New Orleans' Bobby Douglass did complete one, but it was for a one-yard loss.

Plunkett, the former Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, finally completed his first toss of the afternoon on the 'Niners' initial play of the third stanza. It was good for 13 yards to running back Delvin Williams, and a first down on the SF 49.

The 49ers proceeded to move 64 yards in eight plays to get the tying TD with 3:59 gone in the third period. Plunkett connected with Willie McGee for a 14-yard toss on the drive, and Wilbur Jackson and Williams provided the yardage on the ground.

Meyer said, "Our defense played well all game, and it took control in the second half."

The former Los Angeles offensive coordinator added, "We decided to go to Wilbur more in the second half, and obviously, we got better results. I thought our offensive line did the job when it had to."

Veteran tackle Cas Banaszek sustained a broken right leg on a 49er punting play. Banaszek is in his tenth year with the San Francisco team.

Douglass, the former Chicago Bear, had moved the Saints downfield rapidly in the waning minutes of regulation time, throwing to Henry Childs for 31 yards on one play, and going up the middle for 20 on a quarterback draw.

Linebacker Willie Harper was tenacious on defense for the 49ers, coming up with 12 solo tackles.

It was New Orleans' first tie after regulation time since 1972, when they played to a 20-20 standoff with the 'Niners at Candlestick Park.

"It breaks your heart," said Saints' coach Hank Stram. "It was a shame to lose it on a missed field goal. We should have won."

Stram said his team did everything right — until Szaro's kick hit the upright and bounced back.

"It all boiled down to that missed kick, all that effort was wasted."

Short yardage

Dallas Cowboys' Butch Johnson (86) made short yardage in this first quarter run against St. Louis Cardinals' at Irving, Texas Monday night. Making the tackle for St. Louis is Bob Giblin. The Cardinals upset Dallas, 24-17, for the Cowboys' first loss of the year.

Raiders survive, 34-29

Oilers question the tide

OAKLAND — The Houston Oilers didn't just play saw with the Coliseum scoreboard in a 34-29 loss to the Oakland Raiders Sunday.

After place-kicker Toni Fritsch injured himself on a second quarter kickoff, the Oilers held mid-season tryouts for kicker as the marching band was exiting the field at halftime. It looked like the finals of the 25-year-old division of PPK competition.

The winner was Dan Pastorini, who showed nothing of the form he displayed while place-kicking and punting and quarterbacking at the University of Santa Clara seven years ago.

But Pastorini did prove himself a powerful QB by throwing a pair of touchdown bombs to his celebrated receivers William Johnson and Kenny Burroughs.

Billy "White Shoes," as Johnson is commercially known, still had a complaint.

"Every time we come here, the field is wet," the speedster said. "Whether it has rained for weeks or not." Houston coach Bum Phillips was a little more off guard in saying, "I don't know how long it's been since you all have had rain out here, but there must be a helluva tide."

The wet field was cause in part for Fritsch's injury. He explained later, in his Austrian accent, from his seat on the team bus. "My left leg slipped. A wet field is good for a conventional style kicker, but I come from the side. I'm sorry, but I couldn't go back out and kick after that."

Pastorini, who had trouble getting his kickoffs going anywhere — in addition to missing an extra point — said, "I haven't even practiced kicking in seven years. I hope Tony will be ready for next week. Pulling a hamstring is pretty serious, though."

Actually, Fritsch did not pull a hamstring. He said it was a muscle behind his left knee. He did not know if the injury was very serious.

Phillips, whose Oilers still remain in the thick of the American Conference Central Division race despite a 4-5 record — they're one game out of first place — had praise for the Raiders. "Don't take anything away from them, they're the world champions of football."

Phillips was biting his tongue after the game, though, because backup kicker Ted Thompson, who plays line-backer, forgot his kicking toe when the team packed its bags in Houston.

"I'm the coach, and I'm supposed to check everything," he said in taking the blame away from any equipment managers. No one stuck around to see what he said to the equipment manager.

The Raiders, though, played catchup a good part of the day and still came out ahead. Quarterback Kenny Stabler saw that as a very good sign.

"We were fighting an uphill battle the whole game," the Snake commented. "They're a 'big play' team, not a ball control team. That made a horse race out of it. But, at this point of the season for our offense to come around like it did is a healthy sign."

The Raiders missed one chance to put the game away, though, when the Oilers stopped them at the goal line after a first down at the one.

On third-and-goal, running back Clarence Davis was hit with a seven-yard loss when the Oilers sent a defensive back through the unassuming Raider line. Guard George Beuhler, whose job it was to keep the man out, was straightforward about it.

"They just shot the corner across the line," he said. "And Clarence was figuring on taking the ball outside. I tried to knock him out to get Clarence free, but he shot right by me."

Pastorini was slow to admit that the Oilers received more breaks than the Raiders, though.

"We had everything in the world going against us today," the tired signal-caller said. "We struck pretty quickly against a good team. We have talent."

Wolves, Mustangs exchange

San Ramon and Monte Vista switched positions in the East Bay Prepwriter's 4-A football poll this morning after the Wolves won the East Bay Athletic League title with a 7-3 win over the Mustangs Friday.

MV dropped from fifth to sixth, while the Wolves jockeyed from sixth to the fifth position in the final regular season poll.

Kennedy High of Richmond was voted the number one team this time around, breaking a tie for the spot they shared with second-rated Mission San Jose last week. Both teams are undefeated, as is third-ranked Antioch.

Antioch and Kennedy will meet for the Northern Section of the North Coast 4-A playoffs at Diablo Valley College Friday evening.

The following night at Livermore High School, San Ramon will test powerful Mission San Jose in the Southern Section game. Not only have the Warriors gone undefeated, they've never had to seriously fight for a win. All have been won rather handily.

The Wolves can rest assured that they will be the underdog. So was Granada in 1975, though, when they were given only slim chances of beating then-mighty Mission.

The Mats took it to them, winning by a 35-21 margin.

Livermore (6-3-1) and Dublin (6-4) remained honorable mentions in the final poll. The 'Pokes, though, defeated San Ramon and tied Monte Vista for those squads' lone blemishes, while the Gaels ripped the 'Pokes 25-0.

After the Mustangs stopped the Cowboys on their own goal line and drove 99 yards for a tying touchdown in that epic battle two weeks ago, MV coach Mike O'Leary immediately discounted the option of going for the two-point PAT and a win.

"A tie is just as good as a win for us," he said after the game. "It hurts them much more than it does us."

However, had O'Leary gone for the two-point conversion and succeeded, he would have had an EBAL title share sewn up two weeks ago, although the NCS playoff spot would have been up for grabs.

What ultimately hurt the Cowboys more was a 19-7 loss to Foothill the following week. It completely scraped them from the title picture.

In the 2-A poll, Encinal was again unanimously picked for number one. The Alameda school is 9-0 on the year.

And what of the axe ...?
On Sports

SAN FRANCISCO — They were there in force. Half a dozen of them, three each from California and Stanford. The head coaches, the quarterbacks and the sports information directors.

With a wall-to-wall audience of freebie reporters eager to fill notepads with even the most banal remarks coach, player or flack had to offer on Saturday's 80th big game.

The Axe

Erb played football at Stanford and led cheers when baseball was in season. One bright spring day, Erb hit upon a new method of firing up Red rooters.

He brought along a long-handled, double-bladed axe and, for nine innings, he sliced up an assortment of gold ribbons and whacked the heads off toy Bears. The Stanford fans loved it, the Berkeleyites were less than thrilled.

After the game, a squadron of Cal men set upon the guardians of the axe, who included Carl Hayden, later a senator from Arizona. Making off with the axe, they sawed off the handle and spirited the blade back to Berkeley on a ferry.

Seven more times, the axe was swiped by one side or the other. Violence, of a mild kind, has not been unusual.

The first major skirmish occurred in 1930 when Stanford's "Immortal 21" masqueraded as newspaper photographers. The intrepid peninsula commandos arranged to snap photos as the blade was returned to a vault in the American Trust bank in Berkeley.

As the cameras clicked, tear gas and smoke bombs were tossed toward the Bear security crew and the axe was yanked away from the Blues and returned to the Farm.

Despite a decision by the universities to make the game a trophy for the winner of the game, the intrigue has not ended. Stanford rooters perpetrated the latest heist four years ago in Palo Alto.

Three Theta Delta Chi fraternity brother pulled it off. One mimicked Cal coach Mike White in a phone call to the Berkeley student union manager. The axe must be at the football writer's meeting, he said, two football players will assist in the transportation.

Two of the Thetas, clad in Bear letter jackets, appeared and accompanied two Cal rally committee members to Ming's Restaurant in Palo Alto. At the door, a rally person entered to locate White and one of the mock Bear gridders said he'd carry the axe inside.

Instead, he sprinted for the parking lot and was pinned against a nearby Cadillac by the other Cal student, who realized he'd been had. Too late. The axe bounced off the roof of the car and was scooped up by a band of reinforcements from the TDC house.

And down the Oregon Expressway it zipped, to be returned only briefly, after Cal's 48-15 win in 1975.

Yesterday, nothing was said of the axe, so long a symbol of the rivalry. And, to this moment, no thefts or threats thereof have been made by the recently beleaguered Berkeleyites.

Maybe it's the clouded bowl picture. Stanford has its oh-so-slim Rose Bowl chances. And the Sun and Fiesta Bowls are interested in Saturday's winner.

The Fiesta Bowl, Arizona's Christmas Day extravaganza, wants to pit Arkansas against Western Athletic Conference leader Arizona State. The Orange Bowl also wants the Razorbacks.

But the Orange people want to see what happens in the Arkansas-Texas Tech and Penn State-Pittsburgh games this week before making a decision. The Hogs have agreed to appear at the Fiesta — if Florida is not in the cards.

Which leaves the Sun Bowl out in the cold. It wants Arkansas, but knows it's third on the Hog list.

Unconfirmed reports have Louisiana State already installed as one of the teams that will appear at El Paso on New Year's Eve. And Penn State and Pitt, the other Orange Bowl possibilities, are favored over the Big Game winner — and Texas Tech by the El Paso group.

Stanford, could be victimized by success. Should the Cardinals beat Cal Saturday and Washington State beat Washington, they would have to wait until the following week to learn their Rose Bowl fate.

Southern California must beat UCLA for the Cards to earn a trip to Pasadena. Bowl invitations may be made Saturday. USC does not play UCLA until Nov. 26. The Fiesta and the Sun may not wait an extra week. No other bowls interested.

The Big Game Winner, as the Cal-Stanford entry is referred to by bowl scouts, may not be interested either.

"Neither Stanford or Cal is overly enthused about the Sun Bowl," said Gary Cavalli, Stanford SID. His Cal counterpart, John McCaskey, joked, "The saving grace is you're not required to report to El Paso until Dec. 27 (three days before the game)."

Ah, sweet mysteries of life: who's got the bowl game and who gets the axe? Tune in next week....

San Ramon will need points

SAN LEANDRO — The way San Ramon High School football coach Lyle Seteneich talks you'd think the Wolves were playing the Oakland Raiders in the opening round of the North Coast Section 4-A playoffs Saturday night at Livermore High School.

"We'll have to score at least 35-40 points to win," he commented. "I know we can't stop Carnell."

No, the Wolves aren't playing the Raiders. They're merely playing Mission San Jose and its ace running back Mike Carnell.

But if you listen to Seteneich it's almost like playing the Raiders. Carnell, possibly the top running back in Northern California, has rushed for 1,975 yards and 35 touchdowns this season as the Warriors have rolled up a 9-0 record and second ranking in the East Bay's 4-A poll.

"He's just unstoppable, the best running back I've seen in eight years of coaching," the SR coach went on at the NCS luncheon yesterday at Pacific High School here. "In order for us to win it will have to be a track meet with a lot of points put up on the board."

Indeed the Warriors do represent an imposing obstacle for San Ramon to overcome.

They outweigh the Wolves by almost 30 pounds per man in both the offensive and defensive lines. Bob Fodor, (250 pounds), Dan Otter (230) and Rusty Bohannon (210) anchor the defense. Guy Martinez (230), Brian Lukson (210) and Tom Spencer (205) spark the offensive line which clears the way for Carnell.

The outcome of the game may determine on how well San Ramon can pass against the MSJ line.

The Wolves have one of the East Bay's finest quarterbacks in 6-2, 190 senior Guy Houston.

"He has the best throwing arm I've seen," remarked the Wolf coach. "He can do a lot of things well."

"But the question is will he get the time to throw the ball?" Seteneich went on. "They're awfully big. I just hope we can get the time to pass."

The Wolves are small in size and numbers. San Ramon also is hurting. Tight end-linebacker Dave Schmidt is doubtful for the contest as is defensive lineman Bill Parsons. Parsons, one of the Wolves' best linemen, is 6-1 and 210 and will be missed against the college-size Warrior blockers.

San Ramon will only suit up 27 players while MSJ has about 34. Jeff Bruno at 5-11, 180 pounds (tackle) is the biggest Wolf offensive lineman. Harold Stokkei 6-2, 210, is the biggest defensive lineman.

That lack of size becomes all the important when SR tries to control the running of Carnell.

"I would say he has about 4.5 speed for the 40," Lyle commented. "He has great acceleration and can stop and turn in a very short distance. In order to stop him you have to play intensively for every play or else he'll break a long one on you eventually."

Still, Seteneich remains numerous in face of the task awaiting his tough, gutsy club.

"If we show up on Sunday we'll have a chance," he laughed.

In the other 4-A contest Richmond-Berkeley Athletic League winner Kennedy takes on Diablo Valley Athletic League champion Antioch Friday night at Diablo Valley College.

Antioch has an edge in size and is a more physical team than Kennedy. Kennedy may have more overall speed but Antioch's Tong Lang is a 9.9 sprinter in the 100.

"They'll be the most physical club we've met this season," said Kennedy coach Don Wilson. "We're really pretty small and have not met a team with Antioch's size this year. El Cerrito is the biggest club in our league."

But the Eagles do have Floyd Teasley, a swift tailback who has run for 824 yards in 135 carries and a 6.1 average. Teasley has been injured the past two games but is expected to be 100 percent for the playoff.

However, the RBAL schools have won the 4-A title the two years it's been held (Pinole Valley having won it both times) and Kennedy is ranked first in the East Bay.

The Eagles have a flock of swift backs and receivers' Darryl Cole, a great jumper, has caught nine passes for 246 yards and five touchdowns. He was the big reason Kennedy topped El Cerrito 20-19. He caught two long bombs for touchdowns to break the game open. Greg Jones, a wing back, has run for 511 yards and an 8.5 average. Frank Turner (6-1, 205) and Kenny Daniel (5-11, 185) anchor the offensive line. Daniel, Rodney Conway (5-11, 205) and Chris Dyer (6-0, 185) are a solid trio of linebackers who key the Kennedy defense.

Our EBAL picks revisited

The East Bay Athletic League race held nothing for the Valley fan in the last two weeks. The two Danville squads, San Ramon and Monte Vista, took control of the title destiny.

Back in September, the staff made their picks for the EBAL finish. All but Brian Martin stuck with defending champion Livermore for the title. Martin went out on a solid limb and tabbed SR while the staff chuckled.

However, everybody was a loser as far as Monte Vista and Foothill are concerned. The 'Stangs, picked to finish somewhere around sixth or seventh, finished in second place. Foothill, a unanimous pick for last place, solidified into a respectable football team late in the year with impressive victories over Livermore and California to finish in a tie for sixth with Granada.

Martin was also correct in picking Dublin and Amador in the middle of the pack, but off in selecting Granada second.

Nancy Park had the only notion of a Monte Vista powerhouse, picking them to finish fifth.

Gary Brown's best outcome was a fifth-place pick for Dublin, which actually finished in a tie for fourth.

Dave Weber, who leads the Staff in weekly picks, proved to be lacking on endurance by failing to land a single place. Park did not match, either.

So don't go out and dig a September paper out of the trash to gnash an angry "I told you so" at us. Our less-than-successful picks. They're right here.

Chabot booters in crucial

HAYWARD — Chabot College's soccer team, fresh off a stunning 5-2 win over tough City College of San Francisco, enters round two of the Golden Gate Conference playoffs this afternoon against round-robin champion De Anza at 2:45 here.

De Anza, which blitzed West

Valley 5-1 the same day Chabot knocked out CCSF, can afford to lose one game, but the Glads are in a do-or-die situation. They must beat De Anza twice in order to win the GGC playoffs.

The time and date of the second game is undetermined.

A LUXURY COUPE THAT OFFERS MORE THAN THE MERE ILLUSION OF HIGH PERFORMANCE.

INTRODUCING THE BMW 630CSi
This year, the Bavarian Motor Works of Munich, Germany will manufacture less than four thousand BMW Coupes for the entire world.

Yet, what makes it exceedingly rare among the world's luxury coupes is that while all affect the racy lines and the trappings of the true GT car, the BMW 630CSi truly is one.

While the 630CSi features as lengthy a list of luxury items as one could reasonably require of an automobile—supple leather, full-power accessories, etc.—it provides a driving experience so unusual, so exhilarating that it will spoil you for any other car.

BENEATH ITS LUXURY IS A CAR WORTH OWNING
If the Bavarian Motor Works is known for anything, it is superb, innovative engineering. And the BMW 630CSi is a direct reflection of this cache of engineering intelligence.

Its suspension—independent on all four wheels—is quick and clean through the corners, its steering sharp and accurate.

Its four-speed manual transmission (automatic is available) slips precisely into each gear. And its acceleration comes up smoothly, with the turbine-like whine so characteristic of the justifiably renowned 3-liter BMW engine.

SUPERB ENGINEERING SHOULD BE CONFINED TO A CAR'S MECHANICAL PARTS

Traditionally the domain of the stylist, the interior of the BMW 630CSi—while rife with creature comforts and complete in every sense—is ergonomically engineered to the nth degree. All seats are orthopedically molded; both front seats are infinitely adjustable.

Controls are within easy reach and all instruments are instantly visible in an innovative three-zone control panel that curves out toward the driver in the manner of an airplane cockpit.

SERVICE AS EFFICIENT AND RELIABLE AS THE CAR ITSELF

An automobile as thoroughly engineered and meticulously constructed as the BMW 630CSi deserves competent, reliable servicing.

While it would certainly be inaccurate to claim perfection, it is nevertheless a fact that no more complete or innovative a technical training program exists in the automotive business than the one BMW mechanics are required to attend on a regular yearly basis.

And this human wisdom combined with the human perfection of costly computerized equipment assures rapid routine servicing, perfect engine tuning and accurate diagnosis of any impending problem.

If you'd care to judge the BMW Coupe for yourself, simply phone your BMW dealer and he'll arrange a thorough test drive for you at your convenience.

GOP and numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians always say they don't want to get into the numbers game. Then they play it.

It is, after all, the only game in town between elections.

There are two sets of rules. One, for the party or the candidate who expects to win, is poor-mouthing so as to magnify a victory. The other, for politician going against the odds, is to make exaggerated claims, perhaps in hope that saying it might make it come true.

Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, the House Republican leader, was proceeding on plan two when he p-ered ahead a year to the 1978 congressional elections.

"Well, I always avoid the temptation of playing that numbers game," he said during an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press." "I do feel it's highly possible that we could take in the House of Representatives enough to make a majority."

"Back in 1964 we took a terrible licking and then in 1966 I believe we had 65 brand-new Republicans after the election of '66."

That's playing the numbers game in reverse; actually, the Republicans gained 47 House seats in that comeback year, a showing they have not approached since.

"We would need something like 72 this time ..."

Rhodes went on. "I think it could be done."

That is not a widely held view. Democrats dominate the House, 289 seats to 146, and it would take a miracle to put the Republicans in charge next time.

Indeed, Rhodes acknowledged off camera that he wouldn't be unhappy if the Republicans gained, say, 40 seats in the House - which also looks like a long shot at this point.

Historically, the party out of White House power has gained 35 to 45 House seats in midterm congressional elections. But one official at the Republican National Committee conceded that the GOP will be doing well to gain half that number next year.

He could, of course, have been playing the poor-mouth numbers game.

But Gallup polls indicate that if the election were held now, the Republican gains would be minimal at best. Gallup soundings found Republican congressional support now to be almost identical to that four years ago. After the elections of 1974, Republicans had two fewer seats in the House than they hold now.

The numbers game is not limited to advance speculation. It can be played after an elections, too. That's happening now, in assessments of the assorted elections of 1977. Republican National Chairman Bill Brock claims important gains and solid progress. But the Democrats counter that for a party as dominant as theirs, breaking even is winning.

Actually, it takes a games-man of no mean skill to find any national trend in the scattering of elections that are held in odd-numbered years.

So Democratic Gov. Brendan Byrne won landslide re-election in New Jersey, when he looked like a sure loser. Brock can point to Republican gains in the New Jersey state Senate, where the GOP picked up three seats. His claim to GOP progress is somewhat weakened by the fact that Democrats gained five seats in the Statehouse, and held control of both branches of the legislature.

Senate profiles: believe it or not

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mirror, mirror on the wall, who's the fairest senator of all? Just ask one; he'll tell you.

The biography put out by the office of Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, begins: "If someone were to write down all of the qualities needed in a senator from Idaho, he might start by reading a biographical sketch of Jim McClure."

Unless that someone happens to prefer McClure's Democratic colleague, Sen. Frank Church, whose biography begins by informing us that "for nearly a generation, over 20 years, Frank Church has been the most celebrated Idahoan to represent his state in the Senate since William E. Borah, the famed 'Lion of Idaho.'"

Biographical hyperbole is not limited to the lions of Idaho.

"Clifford Case often has been described as 'integrity at work,'" says the "background kit," issued by the Republican senator from New Jersey. It goes on:

"In an era when the public has become distrustful and disenchanted with most political leaders, Clifford Case has stood out as an exception, an officeholder who has earned the trust not only of his constituents but of all who know him."

Sen. Jennings Randolph's biography includes a page and a half listing of awards including one from the Washington Post Lions Club in 1956, the National Utility Contractors Association's Man of the Year in 1972, and in 1963, the Youth Appreciation Award from the Bowling Proprietors Association of America, Inc.

Some try to show a bit of humility. The single-page biography for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., opens with this note from Clint Fuller, his executive assistant:

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

"Sen. Helms protests that this resume is too long. However, since his has been a somewhat varied career, I feel that different aspects will be of interest to different people who make inquiry of us."

From the Arthur Burns manual on how not to make friends and influence senators, comes the Federal Reserve Board chairman's call for senatorial support for a campaign to hold down salary hikes for federal employees.

Appearing before the Senate Banking Committee, whose members along with all other members of Congress received a $12,900 pay boost this year, Burns urged Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to "join me in bringing about a lowering of your salary and mine."

Stevenson noted that Congress had gone for eight years without a pay raise "and nobody followed our lead."

"What we had was inaction," said Burns "we did not have moral leadership."

The next time you're at one of those famous Washington cocktail parties and you find yourself standing next to Arthur Burns — he's the short, gray-haired fellow smoking the pipe — you might turn to him and in your most knowledgeable tone say, "How's the M2 looking, Mr. Chairman?"

No doubt, everyone around you will stand in awe of your fiscal expertise. The chairman speaks often of M1, M2 and M3, and practically no one knows what he's talking about.

For those who care, M1 is the amount of money in currency and checking accounts; M2 is the total of M1 plus the money held in savings and other time deposits in commercial banks, while M3 equals M2 plus deposits in other thrift institutions such as savings and loan associations and credit unions.

Incidental intelligence from the office of Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo.: the state of Wyoming has the highest percentage of citizens band radio operators in the nation.

According to a Hansen press release, 32,591 Wyoming residents had CB licenses as of the end of May. That represents 8.7 percent of Wyoming's population.

Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Martha Keys, D-Kans., hold the unique distinction of being the only husband and wife in Congress.

In a recent press release they also claimed another distinction with the announcement that their red 1966 Oldsmobile Cutlass had passed the 200,000-mile milestone.

The event was duly celebrated with champagne at a curbside reception.

Legionnaire crisis may be brewing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — At least three Californians have died of Legionnaires' disease in recent months, and a state laboratory is swamped with requests to test for the mysterious ailment, state officials said Monday.

State Health Department spokesman Bob Nance confirmed an earlier report of five cases of illnesses in California identified as Legionnaires' disease.

The newspaper said the deaths occurred "in recent months" in Marin and Santa Clara counties and at the Wadsworth Veterans Administration Hospital in the Los Angeles area. No names were released.

In Berkeley, Dr. James Chin, chief of the Health Department laboratories, said he has been deluged with requests to conduct tests for the disease in cases of mysterious illnesses and deaths around the state.

Chin said it takes months to complete the complex tests, and that as the process continues the number of confirmed cases can be expected to increase.

"The investigation into the Legionnaires' disease in this state really has not gotten into high gear yet. Our laboratory is just starting to crank up," Chin said.

"Each day the number of cases can be expected to increase" as more tests are completed, he added.

The mysterious disease got its name from an outbreak during an American Legion convention in Philadelphia in July 1976 in which 29 persons died.

Although the precise cause of the ailment is still a source of scientific research and debate, medical researchers have found another 300 cases, including 46 deaths, in 24 states since the Philadelphia incident.

The Union said federal and state officials were "reluctant" to discuss the cases and added, "however... other persons in the health field say privately there may be more concentrations of it (Legionnaire's disease) than officials will confirm."

The war over home videotape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a pair of Sumo wrestlers, two Japanese industrial giants have squared off in what may become the biggest battle of the electronics industry since the development of color television.

Most major American manufacturers already have lined up in the corner of their favorite, angling for authority to distribute the Japanese systems under U.S. brand names.

At the center of the dispute are different versions of the home videotape recorder — the devices which allow television viewers to watch one program while recording another for future viewing.

These versions are incompatible — they function in a slightly different fashion and tapes from one cannot be used on the other. Thus, the winner of the contest could reap millions, not only in sales of the original machines, but in years of continuing sales of tape cartridges — both those prerecorded with movies or other events and those left blank for home recording.

The industry is hoping that the recorders will live up to their promise as the hottest thing since color television sales exploded in the early 1960s.

According to AudioVideo International magazine, sales of the units are expected to total 250,000 this year and a half-million in 1978. An average growth rate of 50 percent is predicted in 1979 and 1980.

The recorders are a high-priced item, with listed prices ranging from $1,000 to $1,300 plus accessories. The tapes aren't cheap either at $15 to $20 each. And extras such as a black-and-white camera can add as much as $500 to the cost.

The tapes can be reused, although dealers report that many people are buying many tapes in order to save some of their favorite shows.

Stereo Broadcast For Diamond Show

SAN FRANCISCO — A stereo broadcast of Thursday's Neil Diamond special will be carried by KYYU-FM, NBC officials say.

The local NBC FM affiliate will be one of 17 stations across the country broadcasting "I'm Glad You're Here With Me Tonight" from 10 to 11 p.m., the same time it's broadcast on Channels 3 and 4.

Officials say the program will be a true stereo broadcast, completely separate from — although simultaneous with — the monaural sound of the TV transmission.

Earlier this year another Diamond special was carried on 16 stations.

You'll See

FILMING HAS started in New York for "To Kill a Cop," a four-hour NBC drama about a maverick police detective's efforts to solve a series of cop slayings while battling front-office politics. The film stars Louis Gossett Jr. and Joe Don Baker.

Brown's debt from campaign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. still owes creditors $149,539.49 from his aborted 1976 presidential campaign, a debt that could complicate fund raising for his expected re-election bid next year, the Los Angeles Times said in today's editions.

"That's a problem we have to confront," campaign treasurer Mariana R. Pfaltz told the newspaper.

Asked what he intended to do about the debts, Brown said, "Try and pay them off. At some point, I'll have to have a fund raiser."

He was also asked if he plans to erase the debt before officially launching his re-election campaign for governor.

"Let's say I'd like to see this matter taken care of as soon as possible, without making any references to any statewide plans I may have," he said.

The Brown for President Committee owes the money to 89 creditors and listed cash assets of only $29,831.99 in its latest report filed Oct. 10 with the Federal Election Commission.

The largest debt, $74,804, is owed to Lavenoth & Horwath of Los Angeles, which did the accounting, book-keeping and auditing for the campaign.

The campaign committee also owes the state of California $282 for gubernatorial office telephone calls related to the presidential effort.

The four-month campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination cost around $2 million.
